Research Databases

The Library subscribes to over 40 electronic subscription databases. These databases contain millions of newspaper, magazine and journal articles, information from reference books, images, as well as transcripts from radio and television programs. The articles are full-text with complete graphics. They are available through the Library’s Research Databases Web page. The databases are grouped by subject, but an alphabetical list is also available.

TO ACCESS THE RESEARCH DATABASES PAGE

Go to the Library’s home page: http://www.missioncollege.edu/lib/

- Click on Research Databases.

OR

Go to the Library’s Online Services page: http://www.missioncollege.edu/lib/offcampusservices.html

- Click on Search the Research Databases.

Note that in order to access the databases from off campus, you must be a current Mission College student. From off campus you will be prompted to enter your Mission College student email and password.

HOW TO DETERMINE IF MISSION COLLEGE HAS ACCESS TO A PARTICULAR PERIODICAL

The Library provides access to periodicals in two formats: print and electronically. To determine if a particular newspaper, magazine, or journal is available at Mission College, use The Complete List of Full Text Periodicals link near the top of the Research Databases page and on the Online Services page. Type the name of your publication. If the newspaper, magazine, or journal is available at Mission College, a list is provided with the format and coverage dates. If a publication is available electronically, the database name is also provided.
