Receive real world experience at Mission College. Our graphic design and digital media programs provide the tools and support to succeed in the work force after graduation.

While enrolled in the Graphic Design and Multimedia Program, Lakshmi Venkatesh formed a team with two other classmates from their Design Agency and Branding class and won the Silicon Valley Business Journal’s annual $25,000 Create-a-thon. They secured $25,000 of free advertising for their client, Lil Bites Bakery. Lakshmi now works full-time at First Person, a San Francisco based creative agency.

Tami Kwok and Li-Mei Situ, two students from the UX and Interface Design class, competed in the NASA Space Apps Challenge, an international competition. The students teamed up with five developers to tackle an Earth-related challenge, and developed an app called Airie related to air quality, for which the team won 15th place in the People’s Choice Semi-Finals global competition. Li-Mei is now a UX Designer at a startup called KUMBAYA Inc. in Los Angeles. Tami is a UX Designer on Cisco’s new DNA Team.

SILICON VALLEY’S COMMUNITY COLLEGE

PROGRAM INFORMATION

The Mission College Graphic Design and Multimedia Department has many classes and programs which can help students prepare for numerous, growing career fields, such as Graphic Design, Web Design and Development, User Experience Design, Visual Design, Photography, and more. We also offer training in industry standard software applications like Adobe Photoshop, Adobe Illustrator, Adobe InDesign, as well as other apps like Sketch, and Axure RP. Many of our students are already working, and want to add to their skills to become more marketable, so we offer evening and online classes to better serve our students. Students can also work with real clients as they develop their portfolios. See more at design.missioncollege.edu.
